

Bully-free School Mandala

You can use a mandala as a follow-up activity when discussing bullying with your students. In the middle of the mandala, students may draw what a bully-free school looks like. In each section students may draw what they plan to do to prevent bullying or stop bullying. The class may work on one large mandala or put the students in smaller groups to create a bully-free school mandala. Display the mandalas in the classroom or in the hallway. This activity would be a great addition to a bully kick-off event.

